Where the name „MOVILITI“ came from:

The name is a combination of the words mobility and move.

Mobility is one of the biggest topic we have to tackle in order to get to a sustainable and safe future for all mankind. We need to move fast in order to achieve that goal in time.

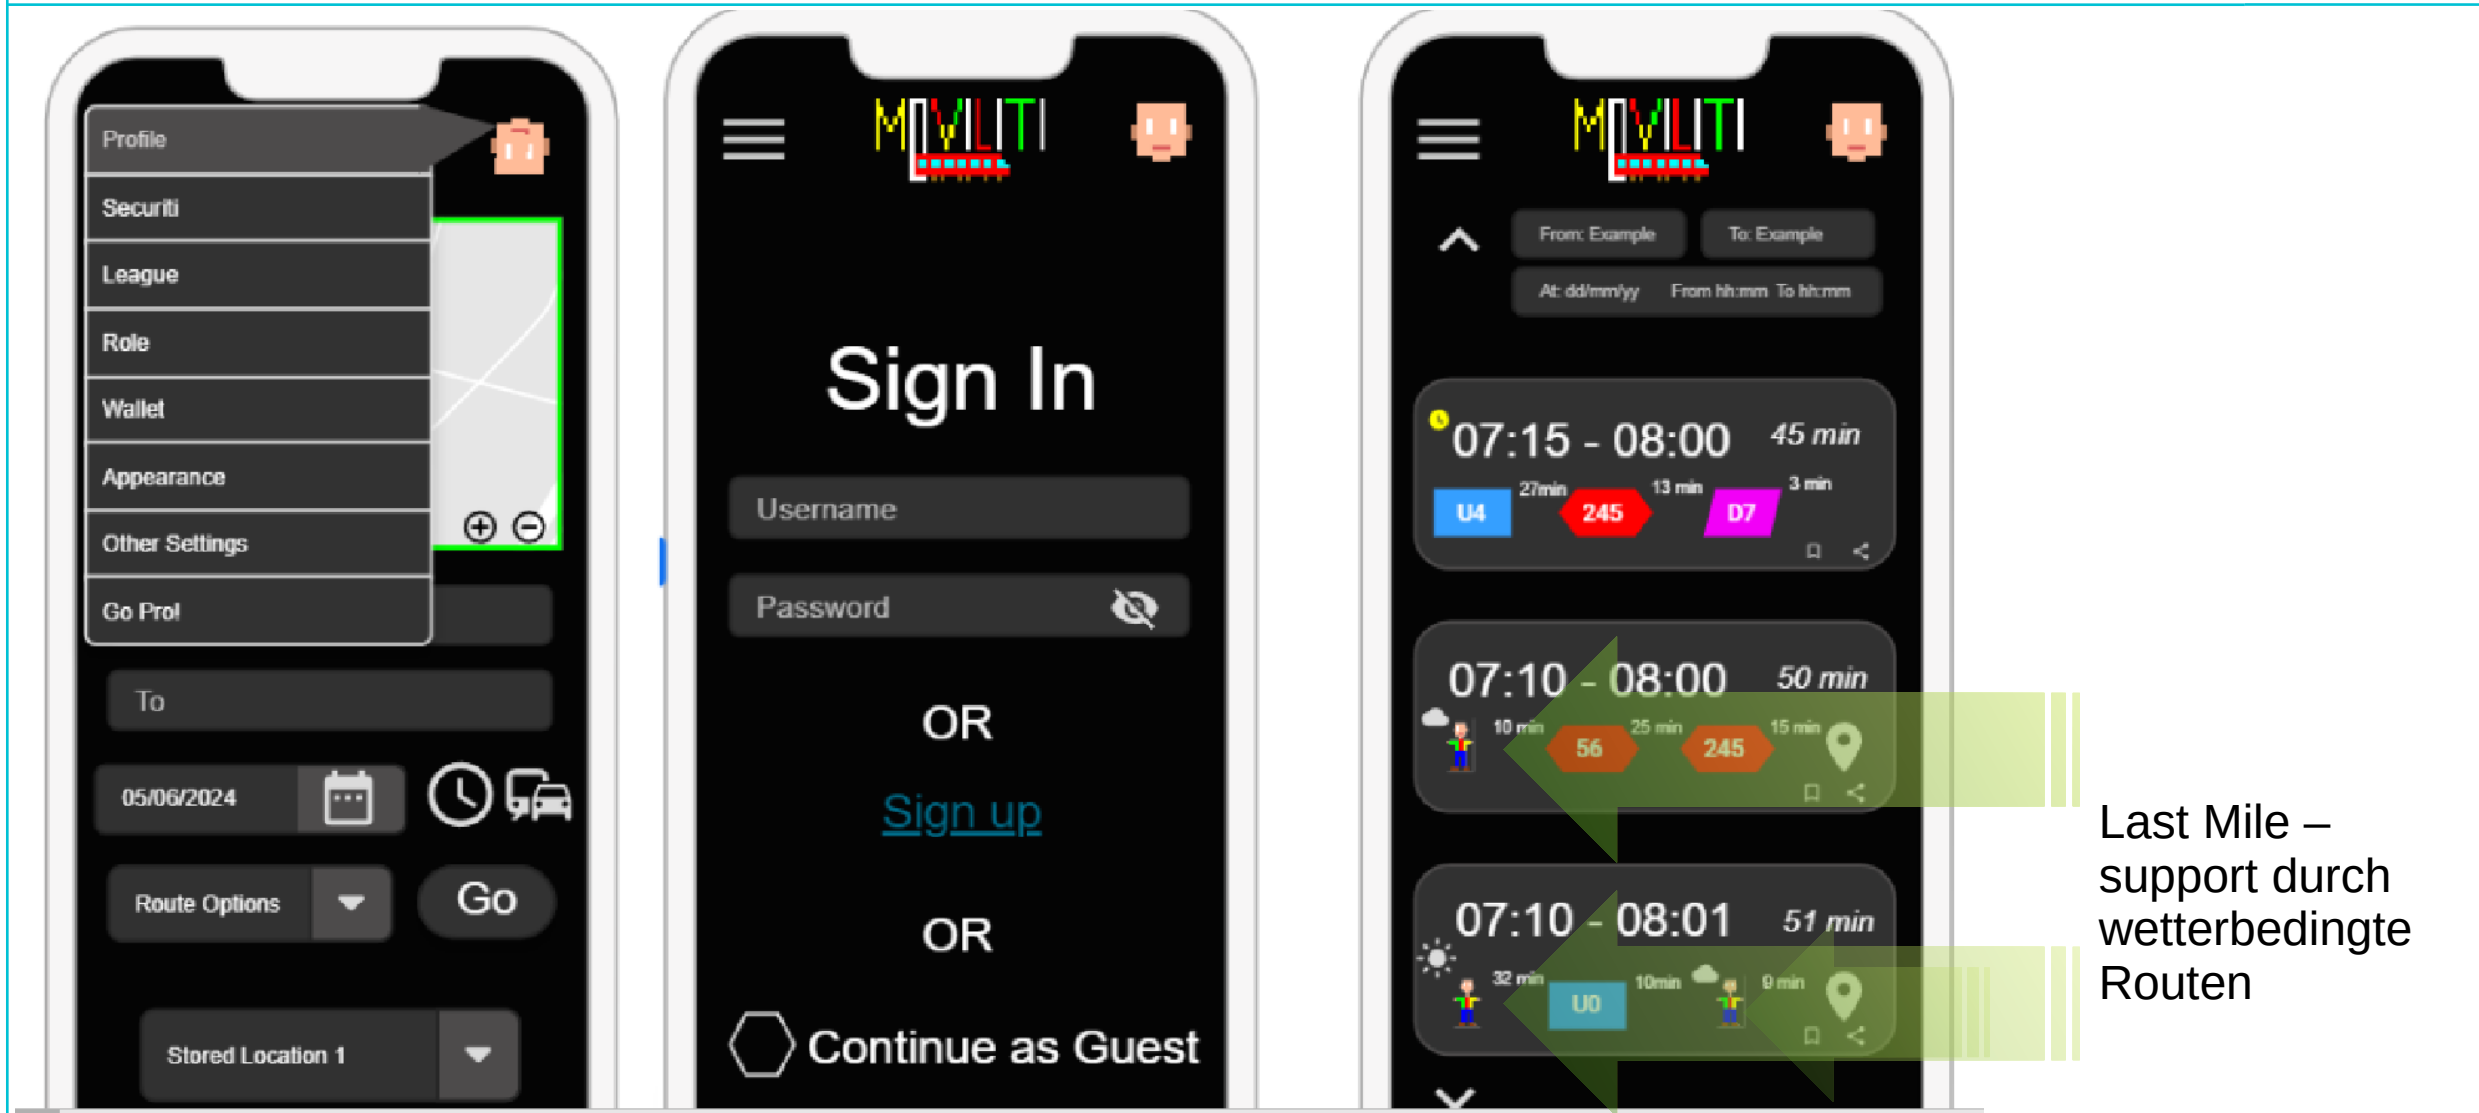

Ironically when using public transport it often feels like we are standing still. Not only because our train is delayed but also because even though we live in a time and a place where everything from our fridge to our work is connected, everything about public transport seems disconnected, and quite frankly badly designed.

We want MOVILITI to help all of Europe to move forward to a future, where mobility is emission free.
